General Information

Overview

This unit develops your ability to use accounting information systems to support effective managerial decision-making. You will analyse and interpret financial statements to assess an organisation's financial position, performance, and cash flows. Emphasis is placed on applying accounting tools and techniques—including cost-volume-profit analysis, full costing, budgeting, and capital investment appraisal—to evaluate and resolve a range of management problems. You will also examine contemporary accounting issues and trends that impact decision-making. Throughout the unit, you will build skills in accurately presenting and critically analysing accounting data to support evidence-based decisions in various business contexts.
