General Information

Overview

In this unit, you will describe and study changes, continuity and growth that occurs in human development from infancy to older age. You will learn the complexities of development, including theoretical frameworks for understanding patterns of transition and constancy across the human life course. You will discuss the biological, physical, psycho-social, cognitive, cultural and contextual factors affecting development. You will be introduced to concepts and terminology used in life course development. Implications of life course development issues for health professional practice will be explored. You will be provided a sound foundation for understanding expected life course events and a basis for learning about atypical life course occurrences in subsequent units.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student feedback SUTE Report

Feedback

Students appreciated the opportunity to discuss the learning content and examples of how to apply theory to practice.

Recommendation

It is recommended that tutorials maintain a primary focus of presenting of key learning content framed in practical application.

Feedback from Self-reflection Student feedback SUTE Report

Feedback

Students noted that longer tutorials would provide the opportunity to delve into real-world theory-to-practice discussions.

Recommendation

It is recommended that longer tutorials are scheduled to facilitate deeper discussion regarding practical application of the learning content to real-world scenarios.

Feedback

Students found marking feedback to be vague and lacking constructive indications.

Recommendation

It is recommended that assessment feedback be clear, balanced, and constructive - highlighting both strengths and areas for improvement, along with practical suggestions for development.
