General Information

Overview

This unit will help you become a programmer even if you have had no programming experience. You will learn and practise topics such as pseudocode, variables, constants, data types, operators, expressions, statements, classes, objects, control constructs, methods, passing parameters and arrays. In addition, you will learn how to design, implement and test programs using a modern Integrated Development Environment (IDE).

Attendance Requirements

All on-campus students are expected to attend scheduled classes – in some units, these classes are identified as a mandatory (pass/fail) component and attendance is compulsory. International students, on a student visa, must maintain a full time study load and meet both attendance and academic progress requirements in each study period (satisfactory attendance for International students is defined as maintaining at least an 80% attendance record).

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Teacher Evaluation (Term 1, 2023)

Feedback

There were limited responses in the class because of a struggle to understand programming concepts.

Recommendation

This problem is highly related to the challenging Java programming language for beginners. The programming language 'Python' should be introduced to replace Java.

Feedback from Teacher Evaluation (Term 1, 2023)

Feedback

The class needs to be more interactive.

Recommendation

To make the class more interactive, include real-world examples, creating a more engaging learning environment.
