General Information

Overview

This unit provides you with an in-depth understanding of the role and function of TCP/IP protocols in contemporary network communication. The unit details the underlying technologies and relationships between the five network layers. You will gain an understanding of how data is encapsulated, addressed, and routed over networks. On completion of the unit, you will be able to explain the mechanisms used to facilitate communication between applications over the internet.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Staff Feedback

The teaching material should be updated to eliminate outdated technologies.

Recommendation

The lecture slides should be revised to eliminate outdated information and integrate the most up-to-date networking technologies. For example, outdated network technologies like "Cable Modem," "T Line," and "SONET" should be removed, while contemporary technologies such as "Switched WAN," "Ethernet Over WAN," and "SD-WAN" should be introduced.

Feedback

Too many PowerPoint slides in some of the lectures.

Recommendation

Condense lecture slides to approximately 50 slides for Weeks 4, 5, 10, and 11.
