General Information

Overview

The purpose of this unit will be to introduce students to a range of economic principles relating to real estate and property issues. The unit will be organised in three main sections. The first section will involve an analysis of why economic, social and environmental problems occur, the second reviews some assessment tools that are available, and the third will involve an overview of urban and regional economic issues, with particular focus on the economics of infrastructure planning.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback

'[UC] is the best lecturer I have had throughout my degree. Very easy to reach and helpful. The only updated unit content I would have liked is a more recent textbook, as it was published in 2004 (20 years ago) and referenced some studies done in the 1960-1970's - one example of this related to government rent controls which was on the exam and I don't think it is accurate to today's rental market/rental controls required. In a property economics degree, which is arguably a constantly evolving industry, it would be helpful to have a more recent textbook to refer to. '

Recommendation

Current market trends and media articles were integrated into the weekly classes and the assessments. The format and approach to these classes and assessments is to be retained. That said, the foundation textbook is dated and will be revised for the 2025 offering.
