ENEC13015 Steel and Timber Design

Term 1 - 2027

Profile information current as at 09/09/2026 03:02 am

All details in this unit profile for ENEC13015 have been officially approved by CQUniversity and represent a learning partnership between the University and you (our student). The information will not be changed unless absolutely necessary and any change will be clearly indicated by an approved correction included in the profile.

General Information

Overview

This unit introduces Australian Standards used for steel and timber design. Basic material and section properties and factors affecting the properties of structural members are introduced. You will design steel and timber members subjected to axial loads, bending moments and combined actions, then check whether they comply with both ultimate and serviceability limit states as required in AS4100 and AS1720 respectively. Furthermore, you also will design steel connection and timber joints according to Australian Standards. You also develop skills in the use of computer software in structural design. You are expected to document the process of analysis and design and communicate, work and learn, both individually and in teams in a professional manner.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Unit Evaluation

Feedback

Well-delivered unit.

Recommendation

This practice should be continued in future offerings.

Feedback from Unit Evaluation

Feedback

It is beneficial if more real-world problems are included in tutorials.

Recommendation

Additional real-world problems should be incorporated into the tutorials to further strengthen the connection between theory and practice.
