General Information

Overview

Climate change is now widely recognised as one of the biggest challenges facing the world. Its effects are already severe in Australia as well as in many other parts of the world. This unit will present you with in-depth knowledge of the issues related to climate change, with a focus on assessing risks of climate change and approaches to deal with the impacts. You will be introduced to the nature of climate change as well as to interdisciplinary approaches and integrative perspectives to problems of anthropogenic climate change. These include response strategies and programs to avert, mitigate, and adapt to climate change.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student feedback and Unit coordinator self-assessment.

Feedback

Assessments could be redesigned to better support learning across the diverse cohort.

Recommendation

The Unit Coordinator will update the assessment design to ensure stronger alignment with the Unit Learning Outcomes and to broaden its applicability across the varied courses and professional contexts represented within the student cohort.

Feedback from Unit coordinator self-assessment.

Feedback

Current expectations for generative AI use were unclear to students.

Recommendation

The Unit Coordinator will incorporate explicit guidance on the acceptable use of generative AI tools in the unit's assessment into tutorial sessions, so clarifying expectations and reducing the risk of inappropriate use.
