General Information

Overview

In this unit, you will examine contemporary issues in human resource management (HRM) and explore the impact that new developments in people analytics have on an organisation's ability to strategically attract, recruit, retain and manage its human resources in a competitive environment. In addition, this unit will raise your awareness of the relevance of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures in good business practices, as well as apply lessons from those cultures for good ethical, social, and governance outcomes in HRM contexts.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Unit coordinator self reflection

Continue to enhance new unit contents - People Analytics contents of the unit and Assessment 3

Recommendation

There is a need to appoint a new academic with a strong analytics background to manage this unit. This person should enhance teaching materials, including readings, case studies, statistics and new recordings on data analyses. These resources are to enhance students' understanding of statistics, predictive analysis, and decision-making. Ensure Assessment 3 is clear and easy to follow.

Feedback from Unit coordinator self reflection

Feedback

New lecture recording are required

Recommendation

New lecture recordings and updated lecture slides should be done in T1 2025 to provide students with a more comprehensive and clear explanation of HR analytics.
