General Information

Overview

Understanding the relationship between journalism and public relations is vital when performing the role of media liaison, especially in an organisational context. This unit introduces you to media management theories and concepts, and teaches you skills that form the basis of media liaison. These include writing press releases, preparing talent, targeting effective media, and knowledge of the modern digital media environment. This unit will enable you to develop public relations activities with a journalistic focus, including online social media campaigns.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Teaching Staff Evaluation

The focus of learning materials could be broadened to interest and support students who are looking for careers outside of the media and communication industry

Recommendation

Adjust the scope of learning materials to better suit a diverse learner cohort

Feedback from Informal Student Feedback

Flexibility was appreciated by students, particularly those who take this unit alongside units with intensive work integrated learning, internship-style elements

Recommendation

Continue to deliver content in formats where students can access learning materials at their own pace, while looking for opportunities to offer students flexibility as needed.
