General Information

Overview
In this unit, you will explore the legal regulation of sports in Australia, including the concept of sports law and the contemporary legal issues in this dynamic field. You will delve into topics such as the definition and scope of sports law, the regulation of sports, the national sports law framework, governance in sports, integrity issues, collective bargaining, the intersection of sport and criminal law, dispute resolution, and international aspects of sports law. Sports administration is a growing profession in professional, elite, and community sports, and you will recognise the importance of integrity and leadership in this space. Through this unit, you will learn how sports law intersects with all aspects of modern sports. From governance and integrity to dispute resolution and the ever-changing regulatory landscape in Australian sport, you will gain the insights needed to navigate and respond effectively to these challenges as a sports administrator.
