General Information

Overview

This unit charts a passage through the 20th century from modernism to post-modernism through its literature. It invites you to explore a selection of novels by a number of significant writers from the 20th century and from a range of national literatures. These novels address a range of issues including post-colonialism, the transition from the psyche to psychology, sexuality, the American Jazz age, Southern post-bellum agonistics, gender, magic realism, existentialism, slavery, racism, and identity. You will also explore the influences this literature has had on contemporary thought.
