MEDI12010 Radiographic Anatomy and Appearances 2 Term 2 - 2027

Profile information current as at 04/09/2026 05:05 pm

All details in this unit profile for MEDI12010 have been officially approved by CQUniversity and represent a learning partnership between the University and you (our student). The information will not be changed unless absolutely necessary and any change will be clearly indicated by an approved correction included in the profile.

General Information

Overview

This unit is the second of two that examine the relational anatomy of the human body and develop your pattern recognition skills in radiographic appearances of anatomical structures. The focus of this unit is on the bony and soft tissue structures of the head, neck and torso. For each bone, joint and major soft tissue structure in these regions you will study its morphology and spatial characteristic relative to adjacent structures and external landmarks, and its changes due to injury and disease. You will build a working knowledge of imaging appearances of these structures, including standard appearances, normal variants, injuries and diseases. You will describe these appearances on both projection radiographs and sectional images of anatomical structures and their positional relationships with other structures. You will articulate a reasoned decision in interpreting radiographic appearances. As this unit is preparing you for clinical experience in the following term, you are expected to maintain currency of knowledge from the prerequisite unit Radiographic Anatomy and Appearances 1. In the final assessment you will demonstrate your knowledge and skill in radiographic anatomy, appearances and image interpretation for all body regions.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from SUTE, informal student feedback

Feedback

Students indicated that the relational anatomy lectures were complex.

Recommendation

Review relational anatomy lectures and investigate the implementation of a weekly study guide.

Feedback

Students indicated their preference for weekly formative quizzes to consolidate their learning.

Recommendation

Investigate the implementation of weekly formative quizzes through Moodle.

Feedback from Unit Coordinator reflection

Feedback

There is only one assessment type used in this unit (in-class test).

Recommendation

Investigate the use of different assessment types to diversify assessments in the unit and support students learning through assessments.
