General Information

Overview

In Design for Learning, you will study learning design principles and processes within the context of tertiary and adult education. You will critically analyse evidence that will inform ongoing improvements to learning and teaching design. Using constructive alignment, you will develop skills around the characteristics and benefits of writing aligned and meaningful learning outcomes. You will develop a range of learning design artefacts that will help underpin future work in learning design. To enhance your personal learning, you will use reflective practice to examine your experiences to improve future performance.

Attendance Requirements

All on-campus students are expected to attend scheduled classes – in some units, these classes are identified as a mandatory (pass/fail) component and attendance is compulsory. International students, on a student visa, must maintain a full time study load and meet both attendance and academic progress requirements in each study period (satisfactory attendance for International students is defined as maintaining at least an 80% attendance record).

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student

Feedback

Readings are better placed in each week, not a list at the end.

Recommendation

Readings are embedded into the content for contextual reading. The list is a further way of achieving access. I will more clearly articulate how to best access readings.
