General Information

Overview

In this unit, students investigate the Catholic school setting as a context for enacting the dual purposes of religious education. The first of these is teaching religion. The second purpose relates to teaching the practices and characteristics of Christian living. Students analyse relevant Church and curriculum documents that shape and regulate religious education in Australian Catholic schools. They justify the selection of primary and secondary data sources that signify the defining features, nature and purpose of Catholic schools and appraise the roles and responsibilities of teachers in their relationships with and representation of the wider faith community.
