General Information

Overview

In this unit, you will develop an understanding of social work knowledge and practice, focusing on group work, family work and community practice. Using case study role plays and living labs, you will critically analyse and apply various social work theories and methods, integrating professional values and ethics to develop skills for working with families, groups and communities. From a critical perspective, you will evaluate and reflect on biases and assumptions inherent within these theories, methods and your practice and assess how they perpetuate and challenge social injustices. You will enhance your cross-cultural practice and explore culturally sensitive and ethical responses to challenges experienced by culturally and racially marginalised families, groups and communities. Guided by the AASW Code of Ethics (2020), this unit will equip you with skills for cultural humility, recognising different ways of knowing, being and doing that is responsive to the needs of all families, groups and communities.
